Towards the Renovation of the
Swiss Church in London

The Renovation Project

The Swiss Church Building in Covent Garden, 154 years old, is undergoing a major renovation and transformation. The Church was founded in 1762 by Swiss Protestants. The renovation project, designed by Christ & Gantenbein, aims at both restoring and enhancing the building in terms of attractiveness and functionality. When reopening later this year the new building will extend far beyond the Parish. The 20,000 or so Swiss community living in and around London and their many friends will be able to enjoy an outstanding new venue.

A central and striking feature of the renovation will be the new, fully mechanical organ, built by the renowned firm, Späth Orgelbau from Rapperswil. Späth organs are famous for their impeccable craftsmanship and their full sound. It will enrich the worship and enable the Swiss Church to hold organ and choir concerts of the highest standing.

Become part of the renovated Swiss Church

We need your help raising the remaining £ 100,000 of the renovation budget of £2.2million. And this how better than by sponsoring an individual organ pipe. The new organ will have a total of 676 pipes made of wood, spruce or tin. They vary in lengths from 1.8cm to 2.4m. Each pipe, big or small, will play its part in the music of the great new hall. By sponsoring one or more of them you will play a unique part in the restoration and future of the Swiss Church in London

Every sponsor will receive a certificate acknowledging his/her contribution and a permanent record will be kept on display in the organ case.

For further information on the renovation project and progress on the appeal please go to our website: www.swisschurchlondon.org.uk.
